Customer Reviews

Very well laid out and set up. Very useful to students, interns, residents and myself.

I marked it down one star because the print is hard to read. Many gerontologists are older themselves and many of us need bigger print. So, I copied it on a copy machine in zoom mode so I could make use of this valuable product.

The series of three cards are nice to have at one's fingertips for reference. They are very portable and laminated so that a bag, drawer, or small counter space is all that is necessary to use to port or store them.

Handy guide for medical students. However, the corner binding fell off the second day I took this to clinic so I had to find something else to hold the 3 hole-punched cards together instead.

This is an excellent little pocket set to keep with you for a quick geriatrics review. Would come in handy on a geriatrics or internal medicine rotation.

I used this pocketcard for my geriatric assessments in adult health clinical. It was very helpful to have most of the assessment tools on the pocketcard and literally in my pocket!

As an acute care gero NP student they are applicable. Might get more use in a primary care setting but not a bad reference. They fit in lab coat and don't take up too much room.

A fair set of some of the most common Geri interviews for evaluating your patients condition. Worth having if your doing Geri rounds.
