Outlaw Wolves Of The Currumpaw

Synopsis

Man vs. Wolf The age-old blood feud comes to a head in New Mexico's Currumpaw Valley. It is the fall of 1893. Lobo and his pack of cattle-killing wolves have been decimating the herds and threatening to bankrupt the ranchers. A bounty goes out: $1,000 to the man who can kill Lobo. After many men try and fail to catch the cunning wolf, an experienced hunter by the name of Ernest Thompson Seton arrives to wage war against Lobo and his pack. Little did he suspect that the encounter would change his life. Based on the true account set forth by Ernest Thompson Seton.

Customer Reviews

I love a good story so I enjoyed this book very much. The author has captured the tension between wild animals and humans. The fabulous descriptions put you right into the scene. The story is a worthy one that should lead us all to think about the hardship placed on wild animals as areas become more populated. This author will be of interest in the future because of her thoughtful creativity.

This emotionally charged story captures the struggle between man and wolf. Set in New Mexico in 1893 it tells of the devastation created by ranchers to protect their livestock. From dividing land and building fences to destroying wild life. Keheler recreates the captivating moments of wolves struggling to survive and how we can make a difference. Excellent read.
